UNCERTAINTY OF THE PEOPLE OF NORTHEAST INDIA ON THE AMENDMENT OF CITIZENSHIP ACT

L. NANDINI DEVI

Introduction

This research paper is just to understand the feelings of north eastern people on the new amendment of citizenship. Most of the north-eastern people have no confident on the amendment of new citizenship Act 2019. They have been protesting on the various grounds that they claimed it will destroy their indigenous culture. The protests have been diverse and dramatic – petitions, hunger strikes, effigy-burning, a rebel militant group threatening to end talks with the Indian state. The source of their anger is the Citizenship Amendment Bill, is that the amendment seeks to allow select “persecuted minorities” (Hindus, Christians, Parsis, Sikhs, Buddhist and Jains) from the neighbouring countries of

STUDENTS AND STRESS MANAGEMENT: INITIATIVE IN HIGHER EDUCATION DURING COVID PANDEMIC

N. SATYABATI DEVI, ASST. PROF., DEPT. OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, KHA MANIPUR COLLEGE, AND L. NANDINI DEVI, ASST. PROF., DEPT. OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, DM COLLEGE OF ARTS, DM UNIVERSITY AND H. CHITRA DEVI, ASST. PROF., DEPT. OF BOTANY, KHA MANIPUR COLLEGE, KAKCHING

This paper attempted to study different activities of Higher Educational Institutions in Manipur during COVID pandemic. Different higher education institutes had taken up extracurricular activities through online mode besides other online classes that definitely help in stress management of students. Yes many institutions have been made effort to give online activities but it couldn't compare with S. Kula Women's College (SKWC) in Manipur that extensively organised different academic and extracurricular activities. It is known to all that, during prolong lockdown, many people felt uneasy / uncomfortable for long homestay that indirectly affect mental peace. Ultimately it developed tension, and inactiveness in overall activities including mind, physical, in this regard SKWC taken up different strategy to give stress free in both students and teachers. Data collection for this paper is just based on primary sources, mainly interview with concern faculty members of the SKWC.

STATE OF ELECTORAL RIGHTS AND ETHNIC POLITICS IN GLOBALIZED ERA: IN THE CONTEXT OF MANIPUR

Laishram Nandini Devi

Introduction

Democracy largely depends on the level of electoral system and its participation. (Lijphart, 1999) Those scholars who dealt with the democracy felt to appreciate the quality of new democracies around the world, and considered the changing pattern of mass participation. (Michael, 2010) If the result of the elections can't reflect accurately the will of the electorates, the process and the outcome will demean democracy and eventually develop flawed democracy. See the experience of Manipur where ethnic assertion on electoral politics is dominating in contemporary in the hill areas. Non-state actors have been trying to insert their infiltrators in the lawmaking bodies with certain perspective. (Muhindro, 2016) In contemporary, many armed opposition groups have been entering in electoral politics and politicians have nexus with them for mutual benefit. Such trends are seemingly very noticeable phenomena of electoral politics in the sense that both the central and state government are also somehow managed it and claimed free and fair elections. They often made attempt to nominate their candidates who have loyal to them, eventually such coercive influence violate electoral rights of those aspirant candidate. In contemporary electoral rights are often violated on the eve of elections. Different acts of state and non-state actors have been threatening human rights. The United Naga Council (UNC) in the State made clear that they would like to be part of a Greater Nagaland as demanded by the NSCN-IM and strongly involved in the electoral politics since NSCN-IM entered in political dialogue with Government of India. No one will believe it the act of one national party, issuing threats to prevent the potential contestant from participating in the electoral process. (Koireng, 2011)

Electoral right

Amongst those political rights, the right to vote and right to be candidate is the most important political right which is treated as electoral rights. All people who have attained prescribed age (adult) should have the right to exercise their franchise in order to elect their representatives. This right is of special significance in liberal democratic countries where there are many political parties. Participation in the government is possible for the people only through their representatives. The right to contest election or to be elected, to represent the people is inalienable right in democratic countries except in certain conditions where the law of the state prohibit for offences. (Gopal, 2007) The right is a corollary to the right to vote and most of the countries grant this privilege of contesting election to different legislative bodies without any discrimination of caste, race, sex, religion, language and place of birth. But certain restrictions are there on the alien, certain criminals and minors and others that in the same case of right to vote. However it should be clear that all the rights and freedom has certain limitation. Further specified in the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, it may be referred as Article 25 says that:

Every citizen shall have the right and the opportunity, without any of the distinctions and unreasonable restrictions: (a) To take part in the conduct of public affairs, directly or through freely
